RAISING VOICES
CALIFORNIA COMMUNITY COLLEGE STUDENT AFFAIRS ASSOCIATION

2019 CCCSAA
Student Leadership Conference
October 25-October 27, 2019

Sacramento, CA

A Welcome Message from the Student Leadership Conference Co-Chairs

Greetings Scholars!

On behalf of the Student Leadership Conference (SLC) planning committee, we warmly welcome you to the California State Capital, Sacramento.

We are honored to serve as co-chairs for this year's Student Leadership Conference. We are excited for the caliber of workshops, inspirational keynote speakers, and networking opportunities, all designed to support your academic and professional goals while enhancing your personal development.

As one of the largest community college student leadership conferences in California, SLC brings together more than 500 student leaders from across the state to share skills and ideas while building stronger community and support systems for our student leaders. As a student scholar and leader your conference experiences will expand your network across the state, introduce you to best practices to implement at your local college, and provide you a forum to strengthen your voice.

There is a narrative, nationally, within our state, and on our respective campuses, that perpetuates the challenges faced by disenfranchised communities, our communities! During these crucial times, it is imperative that we voice our concerns and courageously challenge systems of oppression. Hence the SLC theme: Raising Voices, Empowering Leaders. Over the next few days, we encourage you to participate in brave dialogues, broaden your understandings, expand your compassion, and share your experience, your knowledge, and your passion for social justice!

We hope that you have a wonderful experience full of growth opportunities to enhance your vision and purpose at your college and in your surrounding community.

Thank you student scholars, student leaders, and to a phenomenal committee of professional staff who assisted with making this conference a success.

Warmest Regards,

Juan Miguel Blanco

Lorenzo Cuesta, PRP
C&D Parliamentary Services
Room: California Salon 1
Basic Parliamentary Procedures

Do you know the six steps of making a motion? Do you know the five magic words to adopt any motion? Do you postpone, refer, or lay on the table? Can you perfect an ugly motion so everyone loves it? Or destroy a great motion you hate? Come join Lorenzo Cuesta, PRP, for an interactive tour of Robert's Rules of Order!

Tami Dunning, RP
C& D Parliamentary Services
Room: California Salon 2
Minutes & Agendas

He said what? She did what? Who seconded the motion? What the heck goes on the agenda? Should the Secretary be taking down every word? Come join Tami Dunning, RP, to learn what must go on your agenda and be included in your minutes.

Lorenzo Cuesta, PRP and Tami Dunning, RP have helped more than 60 California Community Colleges by training them on Robert's Rules of Order, Debate Protocol, Using Your Voice, the Brown Act, Uses of 72 Fund, Minutes, Agendas, and Constitution and Bylaws. As partners of C&D Parliamentary Services they present interactive workshops that enlighten and empower the students to achieve their leadership goals, help them solve compliance issues, and exceed their expectations.

Dr. Damien Peña, Ventura College
Room: Capitol Ballroom Salon A
Navigating Ethical Decision Making for New Student Affairs Professionals using the Professional Competencies

Do you ever feel conflicted when faced with an ethical dilemma in the workplace and have no idea how to proceed? Understanding the NASPA Professional Competencies and your own personal ethical framework can help you tackle this common issue. Informing yourself in ways to handle conflict and proper decision making can empower you to become a bridge builder on your campus. Come explore your KNOW-BE-DOs in this interactive presentation.

An Introvert's Guide to Student Engagement

This interactive session is intended for student leaders who identify with being an introvert, shy, or soft-spoken and have a passion for working with students, even though navigating the relationships in a large group may not feel comfortable. Participants will receive tips and practice with facilitating activities that support the important work of creating safe spaces and meaningful connections. As practitioners, we are often focused on how to effectively provide students with the information and guidance they need to be successful. We think about email, text, Twitter, Facebook, and any other platform to help us connect. However, the importance of human relationships has not gone away. It was not surprising that one of the factors for student success in the RP Group study, "Student Support (re)Defined" (2014) is a feeling of connection to the college. This will happen more often for students if the effort is intentional.

Keynote Speakers

Keynote Speaker - Friday, October 25th

Nzingha S. Dugas, Executive Director
Umoja Community Education Foundation (UCEP)

Nzingha Dugas, is the Executive Director of the Umoja Community Education Foundation (UCEP), a critical resource dedicated to enhancing the cultural and educational experiences of California Community College students with a laser focus on academic achievement and successful matriculation to four-year universities.

Prior to this role, she served as the Director of the Oakland Unified School District's (OUSD) inaugural African American Female Excellence Initiative (AAFE); an initiative dedicated to accelerating academic achievement among African American girls and young women in OUSD by addressing disparities in educational and social outcomes for Black girls and young women from preschool through high school.

In higher education, Nzingha was one of the directors in the Multicultural Student Development Offices the University of California, Berkeley from 2005 - 2016. There, her work focused on the retention and matriculation of Black students through academic support, community development, multicultural student coalition building, and social and cultural engagement for undergraduate and graduate students.

In addition to student academic development work, Nzingha is a consultant in the restoration and recovery of the culture, identity and ways of knowing and being of African diasporic people. She had taught classes in Black relationships for over 15 years and is a researcher who believes we must be the ones to write and tell our stories. Her primary areas of research include: culture, identity, complex relationships, race and resistance, history, the long-term psychological impact of oppression, political and social movements, and student leadership and academic development. In 2014, Nzingha was awarded a Fulbright research scholarship to examine how Afro-Brazilians use culture as power, post African enslavement. She is also an adjunct professor in Africana Studies at Contra Costa College in San Pablo, and Laney and Merritt Colleges in Oakland, California, teaching courses in Psychology, African American History, Humanities and Relationships.

Keynote Speaker - Saturday, October 26th

Luis Godoy
Cardiothoracic Surgery Resident

University of California, Davis

Luis Godoy was born in Michoacan, Mexico. He immigrated to this country with his family as a young boy and grew up working on the farms of Northern California picking and cutting fruit. By the age of seven, he would come home from school and work with his parents. There was no time or energy for homework and barely enough to learn English. He worked hard and did his best but always felt like he was falling behind. He struggled mightily in school and at one point he dropped out to avoid gang activity that would have set his life off on the wrong foot. He became a father during his senior year of high school. Becoming a teenage father changed his life forever. Commitment, dedication and passion became more than words to him; they became his way of life. Even though he struggled to juggle work, family and school, he managed to graduate high school on time. After graduation he worked as a cook, a mechanic, a medical assistant, and eventually an X-ray tech.

It was not until he was in his mid-twenties that he built up the confidence to go back to school to pursue his dream of becoming a doctor. He attended Solano Community College, transferred to UC Davis where he earned a degree in biology — and then got accepted to the School of Medicine.

He could not have made it through such a long and difficult journey without conferences like this. It was at conferences like this where he heard of others journeys and where he became inspired to continue his path. It is where he met some of his strongest and most influential mentors and advocates. He is a strong believer of the power of mentorship and has experienced it firsthand as it helped him keep his dream of a medical career alive. He now strives to be that example for others and to help lift others up to achieve their dreams as well.

Today, he is a Cardiothoracic Surgery resident at UC Davis. He is a member of the Society of Thoracic Surgeons where he serves on a committee for Diversity and Inclusion. He has been inducted to the Alpha Omega Alpha Medical Honor Society and the Gold Humanism Honor Society. He is also a recipient of the UC Davis University Medal and has received numerous teaching awards as a resident.
